C/O Canadian Human Rights

Att'n Nancy LaLonde

I apologize for offending you or anyone else with the websites that I was associated with. I am no longer affiliated with those beliefs or the movement and haven't been for awhile. I realize how wrong it was and completely removed myself from it.. I was not raised to be that way. I was raised in a Christian family, and was taught to help others in need and love everyone regardless of race, religion or culture. My parents taught us we are all equal. I was led astray by an ex boyfriend and now realize the mistake I made in following him and being associated with him and his beliefs. That isn't me. I was the girl in grade school who befriended the new girl when nobody wanted to play with her because she was black.

I was wrong in following that crowd and am sincerely sorry for anyone I may have hurt or offended through my actions. I am truly ashamed for having strayed so far from the good things I was taught. I am in the process of regaining my parents trust and this is a step in that direction. I hope you will accept my apology for my past misdoings.

Thank you

Elizabeth Lampman
