

October 20, 2008

Natalie Dagenais
Canadian “Human Rights” Commission
344 Slater Street
Ottawa, ON K1A 1E1

Dear Natalie,

Re: Rob Wells v. Ezra Levant

It’s pretty embarrassing that you’ve taken two months to merely pass on my last letter to your superiors at the Canadian “Human Rights” Commission. I suppose all Canadians should be grateful for the CHRC’s sloth. Who knows how many journalists could be harassed if CHRC employees stopped playing solitaire and took to their work with real gusto? I’ll be charitable: perhaps everyone over there has simply been busy with the RCMP’s criminal investigation into the CHRC’s abusive and corrupt conduct, so your “real work” – censoring journalists, Christian clergy and political activists – has fallen by the wayside.

I note that you have blacked out a number of my arguments before passing on my response to the commissioners. Silly kangaroo, don’t you know the rules? You’re not supposed to censor me until after the show trial. Remember: convict first, then censor! I know you’re excited about using your big, black censor’s pen but just wait – you’ll get your turn. You always do.

I’m going to take the liberty of sending my unredacted remarks directly to your commissioners. I’m frankly not interested in your opinions about what is or is not “relevant” to my defence. Every drop of corruption, abuse and illegal conduct at the CHRC is relevant, and I’ll not have some junior bureaucrat telling me otherwise. I’m entitled to have my submissions presented in full to the censors that will decide my fate. Even the medieval Star Chamber permitted that.

I’m sending this letter, along with my original response, directly to the kangaroos.

Signed,

Ezra Levant

cc: jennifer.lynch@chrc-ccdp.ca david.langty@chrc-ccdp.ca robin.baird@chrc-ccdp.ca roch.fournier@chrc-ccdp.ca sandi.bell@chrc-ccdp.ca yvonne.boyer@chrc-ccdp.ca attachment: unredacted August 28 letter